RAIDS ON BOOKIES ARE NOT YET OVER

Governor Hughes Said to Be Conducting Long-Planned Campaign.

POLICE OFFICIALS NOW IN HOT WATER

Their Failure to Suppress Careless Layers May Require Explanation.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.-Twenty more warrants were issued today against men alleged to be making books at the track, making thirty-nine in all. The other men will be arrested as soon as they appear at the track this afternoon. It is openly charged in New York to day that $1,000 a day has been paid to certain people for "protection" for the bookmakers, and that the grand jury will soon return indictment. Charges against Sheriff Hobley will be filed with the governor, it is stated to-day, that he has failed to prevent race-

As the highest courts in New York have held that a memory wager is not a violation of the anti-gambling law, it is believed District Attorney Clark and his detectives have secured evidence of records having been made of the bets. Clark, in fact, charged that every bet at the track this year had been recorded and registered, and that not a single bet had been made orally.

It is declared that the memory book makers each have a clerk who makes a written memorandum of each bet placed, though the clerk does not handle a cent of the money. In this way they hoped to be able to avoid the law, believing it would be impossible for the officials to connect the clerk and the bookmaker with sufficient legal force

A Busy Governor. Having successfully interfered to prevent the Ketchel-Langford fight, Gov. Hughes is leading a crusade against the memory bookmakers who do business at the Gravesend race track, and the arrest of nineteen of the layers yesterday afternoon is said to have been the direct result of communications from the executive office to Dis-trict Attorney Clarke of Brooklyn.

As a result of these arrests, it is said today that Sheriff Hobley and Police Inspector O'Brien may be asked for an official explanation of their failure to make the arrests before the governor took a hand in the mat-kansas city, sept. 18.—Anyone caught making mind bets or gambling with himself is liable to arrest and prosecution. James Marshall was arrested on a charge of gambling. Here is the evidence.

James was standing on a street corner and had a pair of dice and a 10-cent piece, according to the patroiman who arrested him. While not gambling, he looked as though mighty willing, and the only reason he did not succeed in his purpose was because he could not find another man with the same idea and the necessary capital.

Marshall was fined $2.

YOUNGSTER TALENT LOOKS PRETTY GOOD

Addition of New Phenom, Walker, Gives Washington Promising Staff for Next Year-St. Louis Is Very Easy.

If Walker does not throw his arm away by over-exertion he is going to be a menace to the peace and safety of seven clubs in the American League and a great comfort to the Washington fare.

Such was the the latest phenom beat St. Louis 10 to 1 yesterday, allowing but four hits. He has speed, control, and all sorts of shoots, but he puts so much steam into every ball he pitches it's a wonder he can last nine innings, big and husky as he is. In this respect Walker reminds you of Bill Burns. The Californian can pitch like a house afire for nine innings when he is dead anxious to win, but if the game goes into extra innings he is mighty likely to join the birdies on the roof. We do trust that Messrs. Cantillon, Street, and other wise men of the East and West will leach the young man to restrain himself within reasonable bounds, for he is carrying 1 yesterday, allowing but four hits. He reasonable bounds, for he is carrying the earmarks of a notable future.

No new manager today.

Johnson. Walker, Gray, Groom, Witherup, and, possibly, Oberlin. Pretty nice bunch of tender-aged twirling talent there. The policy of the Washington owners all this year has been to gather fledglings who could be developed, even if the owners had to stand the gaff for having a losing club the next couple of seasons. Although Johnson will have been with the team three years when he joins the squad next spring, he is still a youngster. Walker was put through his paces yesterday, and is young enough, in all conscience, and is young enough, in all conscience year or so. Gray and Groom worked their way up through the small leagues, then to the Pacific Coast League, and thence to Washington, this being their first season in fast company. Witherup was acquired late in 1908, and has been ill ever since last winter. Throw out his performances this season, for he is not yet in condition, but he promises to be the goods later on. Oberlin is an experiment. He was a winner in the American Association, and may yet be-come a regular in the American League,

If McBride had made off Barry the really wonderful one-hand stop, juggle, and throw that he made off Ferris in the fifth inning yesterday, reckon the Philadelphia papers would have said he had a spite against the Athletics and wanted to help Detroit? Very probably.

the governor took a hand in the matter. It is significant that neither Hobley nor O'Brien knew anything or the arrests until they had been made, This was the first raid that has been made on the memory bookmakers this year, and it is said the layers were errowing careless and were making and the round the hold of the repeated foiling by March 19 and the order the raids.

It is stated in sporting circles that it is said to have caused him to lull the gamblers into a sense of security and then order the raids.

It is declared, hower was found on any of the nineteen men arrested yesterday, but the officials say yesterday's arrests were made on evidence was found on any of the nineteen men arrested yesterday, but the officials say yesterday's arrests were made on evidence secured in advance.

The raid on the betting ring yesterday made the bookies more careful, in the middle of the third, the raid on the betting ring yester day made the second round he landed low repeated positive in every way except with the memory bookmakers for the rest of the afternoon.

All of the arrested men secured their release on bonds of $1,000 each and their release on bonds of $1,000 each and their examinations were set for September 27.
